URGES EXTENSION OF SARANAC CAMP

Dr. George A. Stock Will Leave Gettysburg Next Week For Washington.

AN IMPORTANT QUESTION

Shall Big Camp For Tubercular Ex-Service Men Be Abandoned or Enlarged Extensively?

Considerable extension of the camp for tubercular ex-service men at Saranac Lake, New York, will be strongly urged by Dr. George A. Stock, medical officer in charge there, when he visits Washington next week.

Dr. Stock, son of Mrs. Sarah Stock, Baltimore street, and a brother of Father Mark Stock and Charles W. Stock, is in town for a few days en route to Washington from Saranac, where he has charge of taking care of several hundred World War veterans who are afflicted with tuberculosis.

At the present time the paramount question confronting Dr. Stock and the government authorities is whether to abandon the Lake Saranac camp as a place to treat tubercular ex-service men or to enlarge it extensively. If the camp is continued it will be imperative to increase its size, as every month scores of tubercular service men are clamoring for admission. The reputation of Saranac Lake as a place for effective treatment of tuberculars has spread among the ex-soldiers to such an extent that it is more in demand now than any other similar camp east of the Mississippi river.

"I believe that the words 'Saranac Lake' have a psychic effect upon the men which is beneficial," Dr. Stock said.

While in Washington Dr. Stock will explain the Saranac situation thoroughly to Colonel C. A. Forbes, director of the Bureau of War Risk Insurance; Dr. Haven Emerson, chief medical adviser, and other men who are leaders in the movement to give proper care and attention to deserving disabled.

Comparatively recently it will be remembered widespread publicity was given the Saranac situation with emphasis being placed upon the supposed fact that the service men there were dissatisfied. Dr. Stock says these reports were spread by a misinformed newspaperman who visited the camp but twenty four hours and was unable to grasp the situation. He says further that the American Legion has taken immediate steps to counteract those reports.

Fifty three of the patients at Saranac recently signed a letter written to Washington expressing the approval of conditions there. Only one protested.

Before Dr. Stock leaves Gettysburg it is the intention of the local American Legion post to present him with facts concerning some of the most urgent cases in Adams county so that he can inquire in Washington why their increased compensation has been held up.

"I am for the deserving ex-service man," said Dr. Stock, "and will do all within my power to further his interests."

LINCOLN HIGHWAY RECORD

Over 2,000 Machines Passed Through Wrightsville On Sunday.

The largest number of automobiles traveling over the Lincoln Highway at Wrightsville in any one day, was recorded on Sunday, when over 2,000 machines passed through the town, there being a continuous line of machines going east and west nearly all day. At times pedestrians had to wait as long as ten minutes for a clear passage across the street, and the trolley cars were compelled to stop and wait at different periods until their passengers were able to reach the car, as the machines traveling in both directions at a fair rate of speed made it very dangerous for persons to stand on the crossings to await the cars.

AT FUNERAL OF BOY SHE NURSED

Miss Esther Tipton Was With Red Lion Soldier When He Died.

Miss Esther Tipton, daughter of William Tipton, Chambersburg street, attended the funeral of Private Howard Oleweiler at Red Lion where 3000 people gathered to pay tribute to a war hero in the first military funeral held in that borough.

The service which was in charge of the Red Lion Post of the American Legion was impressive and brought home a clear realization of the magnitude of the sacrifice made by the Nation's sons.

It is a curious coincidence that Miss Tipton nursed Private Oleweiler in Evacuation Hospital Number 7, was with him when he died and then attended his funeral.

Miss Tipton was accompanied to the funeral by Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Wolf, York street. To the latter, Miss Tipton's sister, the nurse sent the dying words of Private Oleweiler, and she bore the message to the young man's parents.

The minister in charge of the funeral ceremonies paid a tribute to Miss Tipton's faithful service and devotion to duty in the last hours of the young soldier's life.

CALLED TO INDIANA COUNTY

Rev. Luther W. Slifer Elected Pastor At $1800 Per Year.

Rev. Luther W. Slifer, son of Rev. W. G. Slifer of St. Thomas Franklin Co., has been unanimously elected pastor of the Grove Chapel charge in Indiana county, at a salary of $1800 and parsonage. The call has been accepted Mr. Slifer contemplates entering upon his duties about August first.

On that same day Rev. M. Slifer was elected by the Carlisle Springs and Stone Church congregations of the Lower Frankford charge in Cumberland county. The recent report that he had accepted a call to this charge was erroneous.

Mr. Slifer is a graduate of Gettysburg College in the class of 1917 and of the Seminary, class of 1920. Last winter he was doing Post Graduate work in New York City where he received the degree of Bachelor of Divinity from Union Theological Seminary and at the same time his Master of Arts degree from Columbia University.

SERGEANT VISITS SISTER

Brother of Mrs. E. H. Hummelbaugh Sails Soon.

First Sergeant Solomon R. Huber, United States Army, spent the past week-end as the guest of his sister, Mrs. E. H. Hummelbaugh, West High street. Sergeant Huber is a member of the Coast Artillery and is also chief inspector of mines at Fort Ward, Washington, where he is stationed. He will sail for the Philippines August 5 to assume similar duties.

OWNER GETS STOLEN CAR

Car of Hanover Man Taken While He Attended Church.

The Ford touring car which was abandoned near the Brush Run bridge about five miles east of town Sunday, and was recovered by Trooper Snyder of the State Constabulary was returned to its owner, Eli H. Fox, Hanover, Monday afternoon. The machine was stolen while the owner was attending church.

PAUL HOFFMAN TO HOSPITAL

DIES AFTER HALF CENTURY SERVICE

Word Received Here of Death of Rev. David William Cassatt.

BORN IN HUNTERSTOWN

Presbyterian Pastor Graduated From Gettysburg in 1870. Civil War Veteran. Heard Lincoln Address.

Word has just been received here of the death in Corning, Iowa, nearly two weeks ago, of Rev. David William Cassatt, a Presbyterian minister for nearly fifty years, who was born in Hunterstown and graduated from Gettysburg College in the class of 1870. He was a classmate of Dr. John C. Felty, Baltimore street, and Dr. John A. Himes, Carlisle street.

The following account of his life and service in the ministry appeared in a recent issue of The Continent magazine:

David William Cassatt, an honorably retired member of Corning Presbytery, died July 7, at his home in Corning, Iowa. He was born in Hunterstown, Pa., May 21, 1844, and was graduated from Gettysburg College in 1870 and from Princeton Seminary in 1873. He was ordained shortly after his graduation from Seminary and thus served the Presbyterian Church for nearly fifty years. He was pastor of the church at Reynoldsville, Pa., from 1874 to 1876 and was stated supply and pastor at Perryville and Richland from 1877 to 1882. In 1883 he moved to Iowa, where he spent the remainder of his life.

His pastorates were at Emerson, Woodbine, Sac City, Vail, Independence, Hazleton, Platte Center, Prairie Star and Mediapolis.

For a number of years he was financial secretary of the old Corning Academy and with the exception of five years spent at Mediapolis had lived in Corning the last eighteen years. He was a field representative of the Continent magazine for many years and in recent years had been an active pulpist supply.

Mr. Cassatt was in active service the last six months of the war. He was at Appomattox on the day of Lee's surrender and heard Lincoln deliver the Gettysburg address.

His widow; three sons, Paul C. Cassatt, treasurer and registrar of the Shantung Christian University, Tsinanfu, China; Lyle M. and David B. Cassatt and one daughter, Lillian, survive him.

Funeral services in the church at Corning were conducted by W. C. Miles, pastor of the Federated Church, assisted by Rev. S. R. Overholser, of Nodaway.

SPLENDID BY ROAD

Buchanan Valley Residents Benefited By New Thoroughfare.

When work on the Buchanan Valley road is completed toward the end of the summer the residents of that section will have the finest constructed by-road in Adams county. The Buchanan Valley road starts from the Lincoln Highway a short distance west of the crest of South Mountain and extends to the Narrows above Arendtsville where it joins what is known as the old Shippensburg road.

Since spring a force of workmen under the supervision of W. B. Fleming, maintenance superintendent of this district of the State Highway department, and Levi Pitzer, foreman, has been engaged in laying the new light surfaced macadam road and have completed their job with the exception of about one mile.

CHILDREN LEAVE THURSDAY

First Party Will Depart at 4:55 In Morning.

Rev. V. A. M. Mortensen, superintendent of the Brooklyn Lutheran Inner-Mission and Rescue Work who is in charge of the fresh-air children, announces that the first party of 55 children will leave on the early morning train Thursday. Rev. Mortensen requests that those who have been caring for the children have them at the station at 4:30 o'clock.

Any one who wishes to keep children for another week must notify Dr. J. B. Baker to that effect before Wednesday evening.

The second party, consisting of 5 children, will not leave until Friday, August 5.

WOMEN NAME 500 AS THEIR GOAL

Expect to Increase Number of Auxiliary Hospital Workers in August.

At a recent meeting of the Executive Committee of the Woman's Auxiliary of the Annie M. Warner hospital, it was decided that a goal of 500 should be set for the local membership. Last year three hundred and ninety two Gettysburg women joined the organization and the women expect to increase this number to 500.

A house to house canvass will be made during the month of August under the direction of Mrs. H. T. Weaver. The first ward will be in charge of the St. Courageous branch of the W. C. T. U., the second in charge of the Wednesday Club, the third in charge of Mrs. H. T. Cunningham. All reports will be in by the first of September.

At the same time the goal set for membership in the whole county will be 1500, the eleven branches outside Gettysburg being asked to raise their membership from 755 to 1000. The county reports are not due till October 1, as some of the organizations have been in existence less than a year.

Since the recent annual meeting $20 has been contributed by the Fairfield Branch. This branch will hold a festival for the benefit of the hospital on August 6.

A SORRY SPECTACLE

Big Liner "Mauretania" Saved But Badly Damaged.

(By Associated Press) Southampton, July 26—After a battle lasting more than twelve hours the flames on board the Cunarder "Mauretania", which broke out as she was lying at her pier here yesterday afternoon, were finally conquered by the firemen early today, but not before the interior of the mammoth liner presented a sorry spectacle from fire and water.

The damage is not so extensive as was feared at first, but it was serious enough and considerable time will be required to put the big vessel into shape. Meanwhile the passengers booked to sail on her will be transferred to other ships. No estimate of the damage in money is possible as yet.

ALLOW GOVERNOR TIME

But Warrants Should be Served on Small Rules Judge.

(By Associated Press) Springfield, Illinois, July 26—Judge Smith in his opinion on the question of the arrest of Governor Small for embezzlement today held that warrants should be served upon the governor but that he should be permitted to make his appearance at his convenience within a reasonable time.

Notification of Governor Small was the message of procedure decided upon by Sheriff Meister. "No attempt will be made to embarrass Governor Small. The order of the court explains how the matter will be handled," he said.

FIFTH FUNERAL IN THREE DAYS

Crowd at John Ocker's Burial Estimated at Two Thousand.

LARGEST IN TOWN HISTORY

Stores Closed So That Entire Populace Could Honor Only Son to Fall During World War.

A crowd estimated at two-thousand persons, the largest to attend a funeral in the history of Littlestown, was present in that town Monday afternoon to pay last respects to Sergeant John W. Ocker.

This funeral marked the fifth time in three days that an immense throng gathered at the funeral of an ex-service man of Adams county, the previous ones having been held at Arendtsville, McKnightstown, New hester and Buchanan Valley.

To his immense audience assembled in and around the residence of Mrs. Martha Ocker, mother of the dead soldier, Rev. H. C. Bergstresser, pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran Church, delivered the sermon of the day, praising the memory of the Littlestown soldier for his brave actions on the battlefield and for the supreme sacrifice he had made.

Following the sermon of the Rev. Mr. Bergstresser the body was conveyed on the caisson of the Harold Bair American Legion post of Hanover to the Littlestown cemetery, where interment was made. The crowd in the cemetery was estimated at 2,000 persons, made possible by all the stores and factories of Littlestown closing, so that both employers and employees could pay homage to Sergeant Ocker, the only soldier from the lower end county town killed during the World War.

Seven Littlestown men, Harry Harner, Roy Renner, Walter Shoemaker, Victor Crouse, Paul Crouse, Delbert Helt, Arthur Mummert and one Hanover man, James Irving, acted as pall bearers. Between seventy five and one hundred other service men from the Littlestown section of the county and from Hanover were in command of H. W. Young, Harold Bair post leader.

The firing squad, led by Edwin Kline, consisted of Milton Anthony, Oscar Rife, Jacob Yost, Richard Wolford, Wilson Jordan, Walter Cortney, Earl Good and Claud Loos, all of Hanover. Theodore Funk and Luther Reck were the color bearers; Leo Lawrence and Ray Meckley two special guards; Henry Konrad the chaplain and Emory Gobrecht the bugler.

Following the commitment services at the grave the firing squad fired three volleys and the bugler blew taps.

Sergeant Ocker was a member of the Fifth Maryland regiment, having enlisted in the service in Baltimore. He was killed in action on the eleventh day of October, 1918. His commanding officer, Major Vinop, of Baltimore, and five other former members of the Fifth Maryland were among those who attended the funeral.

PASTOR TENDERS HIS RESIGNATION

Rev. I. M. Lau Will Leave Littlestown, White Hall And Two Taverns.

Rev. I. M. Lau, pastor of the St. John's Lutheran charge at Littlestown for the past 10 years and seven months, has tendered his resignation to become effective August 18th. The resignation of Mr. Lau is occasioned by the fact that he has accepted a call to the St. Matthew's Lutheran Church at Catawissa, above Sunbury.

During his period of service in the Littlestown section of the county, the Rev. Mr. Lau has increased the membership of his charge by three hundred and has supervised improvements to the churches and parsonage totaling $27,000. The three churches in his charge are St. John's Lutheran near Littlestown; Grace Church at Two Taverns, and St. Luke's at White Hall, totaling 870 in membership.

On August 2, 1915, the St. John's Church was destroyed by fire after being hit by lightning. This building was rebuilt under the supervision of Rev. Mr. Lau. Only nine days ago the St. Luke's Church was rededicated after the completion of extensive improvements. The parsonage has also been modernized during Mr. Lau's residence there.

The cost of improving the St. Luke's Church amounted to $7,000, of which amount $6,000 has already been secured.

Rev. Mr. Lau graduated from Gettysburg College in 1908 and from the Seminary here in 1911. He is a native of East Berlin.

"JAZZ" LITERATURE

Has Not Replaced D'Artagnan In Hearts Of Children.

(By Associated Press)

Boston, July 26—The adventures of D'Artagnan, Midshipman East, Tom Sawyer and other favorites of a half-century standing are still eagerly read by the children in spite of the "jazz" literature that has invaded the field. Miss Alice L. Hazletine, supervisor of the children's department in the St. Louis Public Library, in addressing the fifth annual institute of librarians held here recently, said the well-thumbed tomes in which a dozen generations had sought guidance as to piratical habits were still read with the unwavering stare and concentration that heeds not the dinner-bell.

She added that moving pictures had had no evil influence on the children's reading; in fact more children every month were coming to visualize the greatest adventures of all times between the covers of a book.

She advocated a more widespread introduction of foreign history stories for children and advised that they be taught to read stories and biographies of American life.

ASKS THAT WAR BODY FUND ROADS

President Harding Sends Special Message to Congress Requesting Action.

AGRICULTURE EXPORTS

Also Would Receive Increased Credit. Commends War Finance Corporation as Industry of Value.

(By Associated Press)

Washington, July 26—President Harding sent a message to Congress today asking legislation authorizing the War Finance Corporation to handle funding of railroad indebtedness and to increase credit for financing agriculture exports.

That there were "moral" obligations upon the government to aid in both respects was stated by the President who commended the War Finance Corporation as an industry of great value in restoring economic conditions. Prompt action was requested but the President did not ask that both features be contained in one bill.

Republican leaders therefore adopted the plan of dealing with the railroads and agriculture questions in separate measures. Senator Kellogg, Republican, Minnesota, introduced a bill drafted by Secretary Hoover and Chairman Meyer, of the War Finance Corporation, extending the powers of the War Finance Corporation to agriculture export financing. It also would increase the corporation's revolving credit fund from $500,000,000 to $1,000,000,000.

The Kellogg bill was offered as a substitute for the pending Norris bill to create a new government export financing corporation with $100,000,000 capital. Provisions dealing with railroad funding were stricken from the Hoover-Meyer draft before it was presented and Republican leaders planned to consider the President's recommendation.

Railway claims based on the "inefficiency of labor" during the war, the president said in his special message, were to be waived for the present to hasten settlement without any fight in court. Although the railways owe the government large sums the government owes large sums on various accounts.

"No added expense," said the president, "no added investment is required on the part of the government. There is no added liability, no added tax burdens. It is merely the grant of authority necessary to enable a most useful government agency to use its available funds to purchase securities which Congress already has authorized and turn them into channels of finance ready to float them."

STOCK REPORT

United States Steel Lost Only a Small Fraction.

(By Associated Press)

New York, July 26—Gains in the stock market were effaced within the first hour mainly as a result of the heaviness shown by leading oils and motors. United States Steel whose directors meet at the close of the session to act on the second quarterly dividend lost only a small fraction but Bethlehem and Crucible steels were heavy with Westinghouse Electric. American Tobacco was heaviest of the specialties and sugar and rubbers added to their early concessions.

Call money opened at 5 1/2 per cent on the exchange but was offered at 5 per cent in private loans.

WILL PUSH NAVY BUILDING PLANS

British And Japanese Starting Construction Before Arms Parley Opens.

U. S. NOT CAUGHT NAPPING

Senator Borah Suggests That America Should Use Foreign Loans as Weapon to Curtail Expenditures.

Washington, July 26—There will be no suspension or slowing up of any part of the naval building program of the United States in anticipation of the international conference on limitation of armaments called by President Harding.

Secretary of the Navy Denby, in answer to a direct question made a flat statement to that effect. It was regarded here as the answer of the United States to the recent announcement of Premier Lloyd George in the British Parliament that the building of four new capital ships had been authorized by the British Cabinet notwithstanding the British acceptance of the President's invitation to the Washington conference.

Japs And British Busy
The Navy Department has information that Japan also was feverishly pushing ahead her naval program with a view of getting as much building started as possible before the conference meets. In view of these naval activities of Great Britain and Japan no other course is left for the United States but to push ahead its present building program without let-up pending a possible agreement at the coming conference.

While Secretary Denby's statement was probably the most important development in connection with the plans for the approaching conference, there were others of hardly less significance.

Stops Funding Negotiations

1. Secretary of the Treasury Mellon announced that all negotiations with foreign Governments looking to the funding of their debts to the United States have ceased and will not be reopened until about the time the disarmament conference meets. He intimated that a reduction of expenditures for armament by foreign Governments would enable them to pay their debts to this country and put the world back on its feet.

2. Senator Borah, Idaho, speaking in the Senate Monday afternoon, declared bluntly that the United States should use its foreign loans as a weapon to compel European nations to curtail their vast expenditures for armament.

3. The State Department officially admitted for the first time that Secretary Hughes has been in frequent communication with the Japanese Government concerning the Far Eastern topics that will come before the conference. It was intimated that more delay had been encountered but the satisfactory reply from Japan was expected in a few days.

4. The fixing of the date and the sending of formal invitations to the conference still await final acceptance by Japan.

5. Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, issued a statement warmly commending President Harding for calling the disarmament conference.

EATS WAY OUT OF ARMY

Appetite Wins Discharge For Soldier After Eight Months.

The army's champion eater has returned to Sunbury with an honorable discharge, having eaten himself out of a job.

Samuel Ding, of Hartleton, Union county, enlisted at a Sunbury recruiting station eight months ago and was sent to Camp Jackson, S. C. He came back under escort of a corporal, who had orders to be sure and get him home safely.

"Why, he ate the potatoes skins and all," said the corporal. "Two loaves of bread and a half-dozen helpings of meat were his single meal capacity and he cried all the other night when he couldn't have a meal at taps. That settled it. Sam got his discharge, and I was sent along to see that he got here safely."

Ding admitted that he was "some eater" as he ordered two sirloin steaks with a double order of potatoes at a Sunbury restaurant.

HUNTERSTOWN RACES

The first matinee races of the season at Milheim Park, Hunterstown, Saturday were attended by about 1500 people. There were four races, Free-for-All, Class A, Class B and Class C.

Blandin Hale won the Free-For-All; Patty S. the Class A race; Step Light the Class B; and Henry Clay the Class C. The starting judge was C. L. Snyder, and the other judges were Jacob Eckert, William Crook, and William Lawrence.

Nace's orchestra, of Hanover, furnished the music during the afternoon and in the evening when a big festival was held, at which refreshments were served.

MAY CALL TROOPS TO SHIELD SMALL

Governor's Friends Talk of Holding Off Sheriff at Bayonet's Point.

Springfield, Ill., July 26—Action to be taken by Sangamon county authorities in their efforts to place Governor Small on trial on a charge of embezzlement of State funds was expected to be determined today by Judge E. S. Smith when he reconvenes court.

Although the Governor has made no statement of what he intends to do if a deputy from Sheriff Mester's office approaches the State House with a capias, some of his friends constantly refer to the possibility of State troops being called to hold off deputies at the point of the bayonet.

Troops in Easy Call
State troops are encamped at Camp Logan, near Chicago. Any movement of troops from that camp would be made on orders from Springfield.

When court reconvenes State's Attorney Mortimer is expected immediately to argue for the Governor's arrest.

The present term of the Sangamon County Circuit Court is being kept alive from day to day. If the judge does not order warrants served on Governor Small it is likely that court will be adjourned until the September term.

Governor Small was well guarded when he arrived in the capital from Kankakee Monday. He was rushed from the station in a waiting automobile to the executive mansion, where he remained until going to the State House.

All Expectancy
On the streets, in lobbies, every place where groups gathered to discuss the most sensational political upheaval of the State's history, the one question on all lips last night was: "What will happen today?"

Governor Small's counsel pointed out last week that it is within his power to call soldiers to protect him. It is on the advice of that same counsel that the governor changed his mind about standing trial, declaring that he would stand firm on the duties which his lawyers said he owed to the State as its chief executive, and resist arrest.

DIES BY BROTHER'S HAND

End Day Of Dissipation In Tragedy At Saloon's Door.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., July 6—Frank Liguoro, 30 years, is dead from stab wounds, and his brother, Joseph Liguoro, 50 years old, is in a hospital seriously injured and under police guard, charged with being the murderer of his younger brother.

The crime was committed in Hanover township after the brothers had spent a day in drinking and card playing at the saloon of Joseph Rauckus. The trouble started Sunday afternoon, when a card game was played in a field. The younger brother was one of the players, and when the older brother tried to get a hand he was refused. After this game the party went to the Rauckus saloon. The brothers engaged in several quarrels over the demands of the elder brother for money.

Quite late at night, Frank attempted to leave the saloon by a rear door. He met his brother in the darkness. Knives were drawn and three wounds in the abdomen and one near the heart brought death to the younger. Joseph was found with several cuts about his body.

Joseph Liguoro does not deny that he killed his brother. He alleges that he drew a knife in self-defense. The authorities claim that he attacked Frank, and that the younger brother had but little chance to defend himself.

STILL MASTER OF THE KEY

Colonel Clowry Shows He Can Hustle Telegraph Messages.

Tarrytown, N. Y., July 26—Colonel Robert C. Clowry, 83, former president of the Western Union Telegraph Company, proudly boasts that he can send Morse code messages as clearly as he could when he used to send telegrams for Abraham Lincoln at Springfield, Ill., before the civil war.

He demonstrated it to the satisfaction of the Old Time Telegraphers' Association, when he sent a message over a direct wire to E. C. Newton, 73, at Little Rock, Ark., who was a telegraph operator with the Confederate armies. This is what he ticked off:

"It's a long time from 1861 to 1921 since we were both young fellows and worked the key, you under the bonnie blue flag with a single star and I under the Stars and Stripes. We both did our duty and were spared to see a gloriously united country. Some day the Great Commander will be calling us to another country where many of our comrades will be waiting to attend the familiar '73.'"

In telegraph code the figure 73 means good wishes.

SOX CONFESSIONS HELD ADMISSABLE

Court Orders Them Read to Jury During Baseball Trial.

ED CICOTTE TESTIFIES

Once Great Pitcher Said He Used Money to Pay Off Mortgage on Farm.

Chicago, July 26—Judge Hugo Friend, sitting in the case of the former White Sox players and alleged gamblers charged with conspiracy to throw the 1919 World Series to Cincinnati, yesterday ordered the confessions of Eddie Cicotte, Joe Jackson and Claude Williams to the Grand Jury that they were paid from $5000 to $10,000 to throw games admitted as evidence, despite the fact that the three men took the stand in their own defense and swore they had been promised immunity.

Cicotte Tells of Confession

Cicotte, Jackson and Williams testified with the jury absent, their testimony dealing only with the admissibility of the confession. Chewing gum vigorously and speaking in a low, but distinct tone, Cicotte brought absolute silence in the courtroom when he told how he had broken down before Judge McDonald and with tears in his eyes confessed to him.

"I have cried a-plenty over this case," the once great pitcher said. "I didn't ween and wail as some say; but I guess there was plenty of tears in my eyes, and the crying I have done inwardly is much greater than the tears which actually came out."

When Judge McDonald had finished denying the statements the players attributed to him that he promised them immunity he walked over to Cicotte and Jackson.

"Hello Eddie," he said. "I'm sorry, but I had to tell the truth."

Cicotte smiled. "Hello, Judge," was all he said. Jackson looked straight ahead and said nothing.

Confirms Burns' Story

Judge McDonald not only denied that immunity was promised the men, but followed with testimony in the presence of the jury which confirmed much of Bill Burns' story. He quoted Eddie Cicotte as telling him the alleged conspiracy was started at the Ansonia Hotel, New York, in a conversation between Cicotte and "another party"—Judge McDonald not being permitted to mention any names but that of the man he was quoting. He quoted Cicotte as confirming Burns' story that players asked for $100,000, and that other meetings were held at the Sinton Hotel in Cincinnati and the Warner Hotel in Chicago.

In telling of Cicotte's confession, Judge McDonald said:

"Cicotte told me the plan to throw the 1919 world's series first came up at the Ansonia Hotel in New York where it was arranged that the games could be thrown for $100,000. He said he got $10,000 in advance. He said a meeting of a number of players was held at Warner Hotel here several days before the world's series. He said he went out after the meeting and when he came back there was $10,000 in big bills under his pillow.

Used Money To Clear Mortgage
"He said he hit the first man up in the first game of the world's series, while trying to walk him."

"Cicotte said that was his only misplay in the series. He told me he used the money to pay off a mortgage on his farm, pay for repairs on it and to buy cattle. Cicotte said he realized he had ruined his future, but it was too late now."

LAST TOLL ROAD GOES

Stigma of Unprogressiveness Removed Says Governor Sproul.

The last important toll road in Pennsylvania, the Chester-Darby Turnpike, was freed Monday amid scenes of exultation in which Governor Sproul was a leading figure.

Speaking at a celebration at toll gate No. 1, near Eddystone, the governor predicted for this state "more and better roads than any commonwealth in the union, with a network of concrete highways connecting its communities."

"The stigma of unprogressiveness is removed from the state by the freeing of this, the last important toll road in Pennsylvania," Governor Sproul said. "I hope to see this turnpike made a concrete highway before I go out of office."

At each of the four toll gates along the road there was a rousing celebration. Finally the crowds bore the old relics away, each draped in black crepe and bearing legends appropriate to the occasion.

BIG MAURETANIA SWEEP BY FLAMES

Fire Starts From Lighted Cigarette And Spreads Rapidly.

Southampton, July 26—Fire broke out yesterday in the first cabin of the Mauretania of the Cunard line, sister ship of the old Lusitania, and, spreading rapidly, developed into a serious conflagration. At 8 o'clock last night, many hours after the outbreak, the flames were still eating into the interior of the great steamship.

The fire is supposed to have originated from a lighted cigarette dropped upon the carpet in the main saloon, and it had made very considerable headway before it was discovered.

In addition to the fire brigades, tugs assisted in the efforts to save the vessel. The firemen worked under great difficulties from stagings slung over the side, from which points of vantage they projected vast quantities of water through the port holes into the cabins. So great was this volume that the liner, which was lying at her dock, took a dangerous list to starboard. Timely action of the pumps, however, enabled her to right herself.

Thus far the first-class dining saloon and all of the state rooms on the E and D decks have been burned out. The loss is estimated at many thousands of dollars, and it is said it will take months to repair the vessel.

The Mauretania at the time of her launching, in September, 1906, was the largest steamer in the world. Her tonnage is 32,500 and her length 790 feet. During the World War she served as a British hospital ship for a time, and she brought American troops back to the United States in 1918 and the following year. Latterly she was returned to the New York-Southampton passenger service.

BEER PROSPECTS ARE NOT BRIGHT

Only Indulgence in Other Vices Will Bring Back Liquor.

Beer lovers, who have been looking forward to being supplied in case lots through their physician and druggist during hot days, are doomed to disappointment, according to United States Senator A. B. Cummins, of Iowa, who is resting a few days at the shore. "The anti-beer bill will undoubtedly pass the Senate by an overwhelming majority," Senator Cummins said. "It would have probably been called up and passed today, except this is calendar Monday."

Senator Cummins was reminded that hope that the bill would be defeated had been raised in the hearts of many by the antagonism displayed by leading Senators, including Lodge, Knox and others on the Republican side. "There is a greater power than them back of the bill," he replied.

"I think that you can safely assume that Congress is determined to give a fair trial to prohibition," the Senator continued. "If beer is to be prohibited as a beverage it seems certain that it must also be prohibited as a medicine, and that course undoubtedly will be taken."

While admitting that "there would be drinking in this country for a long time," Senator Cummins predicted the ultimate success of prohibition. "There was a lot of liquor in this country when prohibition was adopted, and there cannot be real enforcement until this liquor has been consumed and there will be more or less home manufacture, but smuggling will in time be suppressed and home manufacture will in time become disreputable."

"There is only one thing, in my opinion, which might lead to a reopening of the liquor question in this country. If, after a fair trial of prohibition, it should be found that any considerable number of people had taken to other forms of indulgence, like drugs—or something of that kind—if, in other words, it should be found that the human animal is so constituted that he cannot do without some form of artificial stimulant, then the whole question would be reopened, and liquor might come back. I very much doubt, however, that such a condition will ever present itself."

Meanings of Dreams of Weapons.
To dream of a keen-edged sword signifies a disastrous quarrel. To receive a sword, honor and reputation. To see an armed man or body of soldiers, fatigue and nervousness. To exercise with weapons, flattering hopes not likely to be realized.

The Real Bungalow.

A bungalow, properly speaking, is a long, low, rambling, one-story wooden building, with wide eaves, serving as a rest house and shelter for travelers in India, where there are no other accommodations.

OFFICIAL HIGHWAY GARAGE

Plans Being Made For Building To House State Cars.

Plans for the construction of a garage for State Highway Department motor vehicles which have heretofore been kept in private garages, are being made under direction of Deputy Superintendent Samuel B. Rambo, who will supervise construction for the Highway Department, which will pay the cost. It is believed the building will pay for itself in a few years as the State will not only house and care for its own cars, but have its own repair place. Governor William C. Sproul has been moving along the line of cutting down such charges and repair bills are being very closely scanned.

The new garage will be 100 by 200 feet, fire proof construction and two stories high with entrances on North street and a second floor entrance on State street, Harrisburg. It is on property bridge and will be easy of access and close to the Capitol building. It has been so planned by Mr. Rambo that it may be a unit of a large State garage to care for all State cars kept there.

A ten-foot isle of safety will be established at the base of the State street steps which are now being cut away at the base to make room for the new terrace. The sides will be taken down for almost three-fourths of the way, affording a view of traffic on Third street. The State has the idea of open spaces instead of high sides to be followed as in the case of the new granite steps in the lower part of the park.

SELL BOYER FARMS

Sale Proceeds Amount to $36,103.40.
Disposed of Klunk Farm.

The real estate of the late Henry Boyer, Littlestown, was sold at public sale Saturday afternoon by the executors, W. R. Jones and Sarah Hawk. The proceeds of the sale amounted to $36,103.40.

Farm No. 1, situated in Union township, Adams county, along the State Highway, formerly the Hanover and Littlestown "pike," containing 145 acres and 62 perches, was sold for $121 an acre, the total price amounting to $17,591.88. Charles Matthias, Littlestown, was the purchaser.

Farm No. 2, situated in the same township, along the same highway and containing 161 acres and 44 perches was purchased by H. D. Sheppard, Hanover, for $110 per acre, the total price being $17,901.52.

A plot of land containing six acres situated in the same township known as the Kellenberger tract was purchased by Monroe Feaser, Union township, for $610. George L. Myers was the auctioneer.

The 120-acre farm of Augustus and Vincent Klunk, situated in Oxford township, Adams county, between New Oxford and Irishtown, was sold at public sale Saturday to Eugene Lawrence, Irishtown, for $48 per acre. The place is improved with a large two-story stone dwelling house, bank barn and other necessary buildings. G. R. Thompson was auctioneer.

CATCHES SNAKE WITH HANDS

Twelve-Year-Old Boy Seizes Large Reptile.

While his pet dog kept a sixty-four-inch rattler's head averted by barking, William J. Zettlemoyer, aged 12 of Millersburg, seized the reptile and later killed it. It had twelve rattles.

Young Zettlemoyer, while picnicking with others in Powls Valley, heard his pet dog barking in an abandoned shack. Peering through a window, he saw the pup backing away from the rattler. He crawled through a window and, while the dog kept barking, he crept within reaching distance and grabbed the rattler back of its head.

During a sharp struggle the boy kept from being bitten. He carried the snake from the shack and was amazed at the fright which the other picnickers displayed. They helped him, however, in killing the rattler.

TROUT ARE IN WRONG

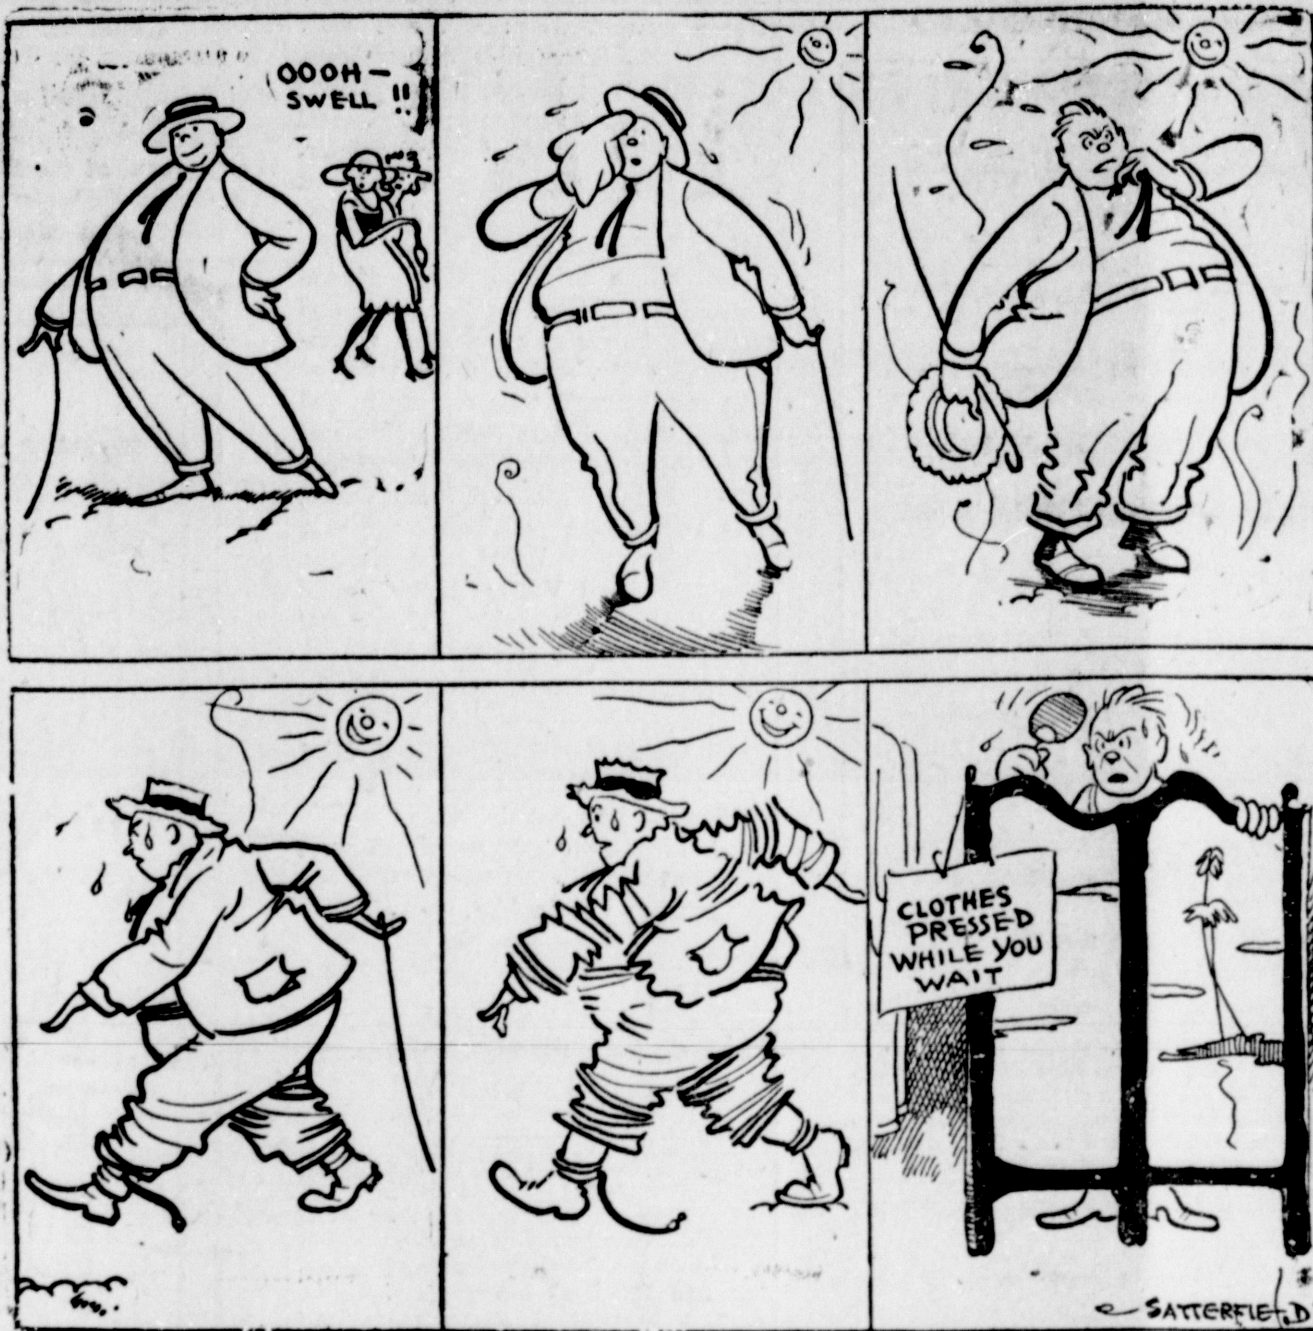

Should Be in Streams With Bugs to Their Taste.

Yellowstone Park, Wyo., July 26—Thousands of trout are in the wrong "boarding house," declares Professor R. A. Muttowski, of the University of Idaho, who is here trying to figure out a carefully selected diet for each species.

Certain types of trout should be planted in streams where the bugs and insects are to their liking, he believes. And because they are not so planted there is a waste of thousands of fish each year.

"Trout are particular regarding what they eat," he says, "If we can select the right place for the right fish there will be a marked decrease in the number of trout that die. My work is to determine just where various varieties of trout should be and this is based on what bugs and insects they are fond of."

WILLIAM UNGER

Conewago Township Resident Dies in Mount Pleasant.

William Unger, a retired farmer of Conewago township, died Sunday evening at 8:30 o'clock at the home of his son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Shaffer, Mt. Pleasant township. Death was due to a complication of diseases. He was aged 82 years, eight months and 23 days.

He was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Michael Unger. He is survived by the following children: Mrs. Rebecca Flickinger, Mrs. Elmina Strine and Elmer and Roy Unger, York; Mrs. Henry Shaffer, with whom he made his home, and Mrs. John Serff, Sell's Station. Fourteen grandchildren and 11 great grandchildren also survive.

Funeral Wednesday morning. Brief services at the Shaffer home at 10 o'clock and further services in Christ Reformed church, near Littlestown. The Rev. R. H. Bergstresser and the Dr. F. S. Lindaman officiating.

Burial in the cemetery adjoining the church.

FINDS BLINDED DEER

Game Warden Turns Injured Animal Over To Hassinger Menagerie.

Jesse Hassinger has added to his menagerie near Reedsville, a three-pronged buck which is blind by error or by some illegal hunter. Game Warden John J. Slautterback, of Lewistown, found the sightless deer a few days ago near Warriors' Mark and transported it to Hassinger's home at Woodland, Reedsville, in an automobile.

The animal is tame and follows Hassinger wherever he goes. It is believed a grain of BB shot is resting upon a nerve of the deer, causing blindness. Its eyes are not injured in the least.

A Lewistown veterinarian will operate on the animal in an effort to remove the shot, with the hope sight may be restored.

HURT IN FALL FROM CAR

McSherrystown Girl Was About to Go to Pen-Mar.

Miss Mary Overbaugh, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Overbaugh, Main street, McSherrystown, had a ligament of her left leg torn Monday morning. Miss Overbaugh, who with a number of persons were going to spend the day at Pen-Mar, was in the act of getting off the trolley car at the railroad and Carlisle street, when she tripped and fell. She was picked up and carried to the home of W. L. Smith, Carlisle street, and later taken to the office of Dr. A. C. Rice, McSherrystown, who attended her injuries.

CAR TURNED TURTLE

Biglerville Man In Slight Accident At McSherrystown.

Norman Diehl, Biglerville, who is employed by the Hanover Light, Heat and Power Company, met with an accident Monday while enroute to Hanover in his Ford touring car. As he approached the far side of McSherrystown his steering gear broke and the car ran into a gutter and upset. The driver escaped uninjured. The car was later taken to Rife's garage, Midway, for repairs. Mr. Diehl boards on Third street, Hanover, but spends the week-ends at the home of his wife's parents in Biglerville.

INTEREST IN CULLING

A Total of 209 Farmers Attended Eleven Demonstrations.

The farmers of Adams county took a great interest in the recent poultry culling demonstrations given by P. L. Sanford, poultry specialist of State College. A total of 209 farmers attended the eleven demonstrations. An attendance of forty-five at Twisden and Boyds was a record for the week. Mr. Sanford brought out the fact that farmers can save one third of the summer feed bill of their poultry by the systematic culling of their flocks. Also that the feed which would go to feed the cull hen can more profitably be put into the young growing stock. Furthermore, by culling out the non-layers each month they can be sold at better prices than can usually be obtained in the fall, and this money will be received in time to help pay the feed bill as the young stock needs it.

According to Mr. Sanford, most flocks of poultry in the county could be reduced just one-third during the summer months without reducing the egg yield. The early molting hen is a boarder. A hen molts because she stops laying and does not stop laying because she molts. The mistake, however, should not be made between the early molting hen and the flock that has been thrown into a molt by some irregularity in feeding and management. A sudden change in feed will cause the flock to be thrown into a molt. There are, however, some hens in every flock that are early molters and lay only a few eggs throughout the year. These hens stop laying early and molt the rest of the year. They will not start laying earlier in the winter as is the general opinion, but will start to lay along the latter part of January or the beginning of February, when the natural laying seasons starts.

WEDS HIS DREAM GIRL

Naval Officer Saw Her First In Vision In Argentina.

Lieutenant George J. Brill, of the U. S. S. Relief, now at League Island, was an engineer in the employ of the Argentine Republic seven years ago. One night, out on the pampas, he had a dream in which he saw a girl with whom he fell in love.

A year ago Lieutenant Brill met the girl he had dreamed of. She was Miss Elizazeth Barnes, of Mississippi. He at once paid court to her and finally won her consent to marry him.

Monday night in the Bellevue-Stratford, Philadelphia, the naval officer's unique romance had its culmination in the wedding of the lieutenant and his dream girl.

WIFE SLAYER SUFFERS DEATH

Joseph Dubois, of Wyoming county, was electrocuted at the Rockview penitentiary on Monday for the murder of his wife early in 1920. Dubois walked unconcernedly from his cell to the death chair at 7.10 a. m., and seven minutes later was pronounced dead by Dr. C. J. Newcombe. The body was claimed and will be sent to Tunkhannock for burial.

Hudson Maxim's "Best Chums"

Hudson Maxim, the famous American inventor, is shown here with his two "best chums"—that's what he calls them—Mrs. Maxim and their granddaughter Doris. The picture was snapped at the Maxim home, Lake Hopatcong, N. J. Most of Maxim's time, when not working on inventions, is spent with Mrs. Maxim and Doris. He predicts many startling war inventions within the next six months.

YOUTH'S HIGH DIVE IS FATAL

Percy Ginther, aged 19, took a dive from a high board at Marlin Lake Monday afternoon and never came up alive. His dead body was secured by grappling irons. Bruises on his head showed that he struck rocks when diving and was rendered unconscious. He was a student at Pottsville Business College. Ginther's father, Adam Ginther, is critically ill.

Studebaker

The moderate prices of Studebaker cars are made possible only because of, first, the reduction in overhead costs, resulting from quantity manufacture in factories equipped and laid out to eliminate waste of material and time, assuring maximum efficiency; secondly, the elimination of middleman's profit from parts made in Studebaker factories, such as castings, forgings, stampings, motors, axles, transmissions, bodies, tops, etc.; and, thirdly, the comparatively light weight obtained by scientifically balanced design.

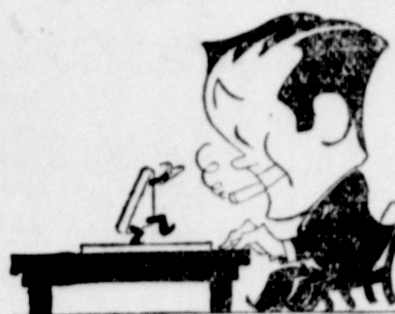

To more fully appreciate the advantages of this complete manufacturing and merchandising policy, owners of Studebaker cars and others interested are invited to carefully inspect the car inside and out as well as under the hood and then to ride in one.

BLUE RIDGE LEAGUE

Monday Games

Martinsburg 8—Frederick 4. Hanover 13—Chambersburg 4. Waynesboro 9—Hagerstown 0.

HOW THEY STAND

	W.	L.	P.C.
Martinsburg	32	25	.561
Waynesboro	33	28	.541
Frederick	32	28	.533
Hanover	27	26	.509
Chambersburg	29	30	.482
Hagerstown	18	34	.346

HAGERSTOWN BLANKED

Waynesboro handed Hagerstown a 9-to-0 defeat Monday, knocking Berry out of the box in the seventh, when 4 hits and 2 errors netted 6 runs. Kimmick and Yordy both hit for a tally in the lucky inning. Clarke was wild at the start but tightened in the pinches and was given airtight support.

BIG INNING WINS

The Martinsburg Mountaineers accumulated enough runs in the fourth inning when they chased Taylor out of the mound, to win from Frederick, 8 to 4. Costello, a new hurler, relieved the distressed Taylor and held Frederick to four hits and one run.

PAIR OF HOMERS BY FEID

Hanover hit the offerings of Hepting and Jensen all over the lot, winning 13 to 4. Feid, with two home runs, featured at the bat. The game was called in the eighth inning on account of darkness.

PETE HERMAN REGAINS TITLE

Wins Decision Over Joe Lynch. Fistic Comebacks Rare.

Pete Herman, of New Orleans, accomplished a feat rare in the annals of boxing when he won the judges' decision at the end of his fifteen-round bout with Joe Lynch at Ebbetts Field, Brooklyn, Monday night, and regained his title of Bantam Champion of the World.

It was a clear win for the little Italian as he forced the hostilities from the opening gong and Lynch's frequent sallies found him ever ready to mix it.

Lynch claimed he injured two fingers of his right hand in the fourth round.

Herman is one of the few fighters who have succeeded in regaining a lost championship. Stanley Ketchel came back after his knockout by Billy Papke and reversed positions for the court in a later bout for the middle-weight championship. Jack Britton and Ted Lewis have alternately held the welterweight title.

Lynch is the third champion defeated by Herman this year. Last winter he put Jimmy Wilde, of England, to sleep and but two weeks ago Jim Higgins, English bantam champion, took the count after 11 rounds.

'At the end of Monday night's bout, Herman was carried out of the ring on the shoulders of a swarm of admirers who crowded into the ring to congratulate him.

LOCALS IN LINE UP

New Oxford Beat Enola On Saturday, 2-1.

Artie Roth and Wiley Woodward appeared in the New Oxford line up as usual on Saturday when that club downed the Enola team of near Harrisburg by the count of 2-1. Simpson's speed was too much for the Enola batters who were held to three hits. Raffensperger's homer with one on in the seventh won for New Oxford. Hen Hersh made one of New Oxford's five hits, and had two put outs in the field.

MENCHEY IN GREAT FORM

Potty Menchey, one of Gettysburg's foremost hurlers for the past five seasons, demonstrated Saturday that 1921 is his "on year" for sure when he gave McSherrytown but three hits and one run in nine innings. Harrisburg Motive Power, for which Menchey was twirling, won the game, 3-1.

The Orphans and Their Hero

The orphans of St. Paul's Asylum, Pittsburg—750 of 'em—each clutched Babe Ruth, the King of Swat, as his or her very own hero when he visited there recently. He "couldn't even smell" the curves and slants of an orphan pitcher, but he slammed the old apple all over the lot when a grown-up pitcher faced him. That sure tickled the kiddies. Babe was raised in a boys' school.

PUBLIC SALE FARM

Saturday August 6, 1921.

at two P. M. Standard time, the undersigned Executrix of the estate of George H. Trostle, will sell at Public Sale the well-known Limestone Farm of the late Judge George H. Trostle, located one mile West of York Springs, Pa., on the road leading from York Springs, Pa., to Gardner's Station, Pa. About ninety Acres, more or less. All under Cultivation, with the exception of about two acres of timber. Four sets of buildings. Farm house, ten-room brick, covered with slate. Bank Barn, about 80x32 feet. Spring House; Wagon shed; Wood house; Hog pen and other buildings. Tenant Houses for help. Plenty of good water for all. Limestone Quarry and two Kilns, with a capacity of from 30,000 to 40,000 bushels annually.

The rock can be ground for fertilizer. There is a big local demand. This alone, properly operated, will yield splendid returns; in addition there is a good demand for crushed rock for concrete purposes.

About fifty young apple trees just coming into bearing; in addition there are cherry, pear, plum and grapes. About one hundred locust trees, thirty-five years old. Twenty acres of this farm is exceptionally well adapted for commercial purposes. This farm must be seen to be appreciated.

HOME

At four P. M. Modern Colonial frame house, covered with slate, located in York Springs, Adams county, Pa., consisting of four large rooms; reception hall and butler's pantry on the first floor; five rooms; bath and separate toilet; with a large linen room on the second floor, and two finished rooms on third floor. All sleeping rooms on second and third floor have very large built-in clothes closets. Heated by an excellent hot water system. A good coal range attached to a large hot water boiler for bath and kitchen purposes. A large stable; two box stalls; and an additional stall for a cow; room for four machines; harness room; entry; large space over the stable; machines for feed; two good sized chicken houses, large wood shed; buildings in good condition. Built in 1904, and since occupied by the late Judge George H. Trostle. There are over a dozen fruit trees, including plum, apple, pear, cherry and peach. A large lot, a splendid vegetable garden, with a never-failing spring and well. The spring runs through part of the cement cellar, making an ideal place to store vegetables and keep meats and dairy products cool. The place is suitable for any one who wishes to do entertaining or it would be ideal for a summer home, as both concrete State Highways from Harrisburg to Gettysburg, Pa., and from Carlisle, Pa., to Baltimore, Md., go through the village. This home must be seen to be fully appreciated.

Terms and conditions of the sale will be made known on day of sale.

Fordson

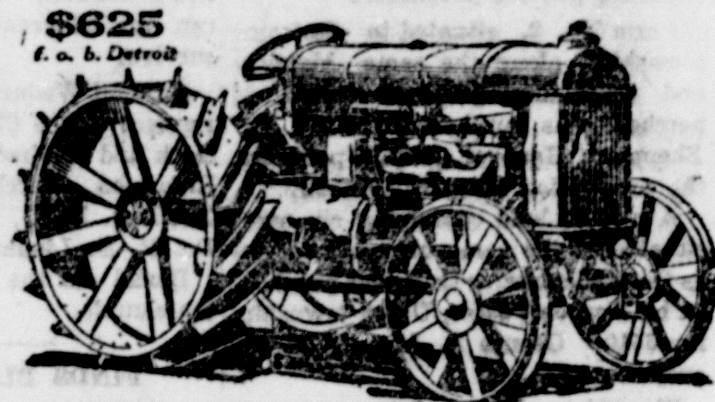

Put it to any Power Task

While the Fordson Tractor has power in plenty to drag plows and harrows through the heaviest soil, it is light enough, small enough and so easily controlled that it can handily be put to many tasks about the farm, that will save you time, money and work.

In fact the Fordson will do every power job, both draw-bar and belt, more quickly and at less cost than it can be done with any other form of power. So every month the whole year 'round the always dependable Fordson will prove itself a paying investment, because of its capabilities, its economy and efficiency.

We will gladly explain and demonstrate to you the many Fordson money-making, time-saving features. Call, write or phone.

Everything for QUALITY —nothing for show

THAT'S OUR IDEA in making CAMELS—the Quality Cigarette.

Why, just buy Camels and look at the package! It's the best packing science has devised to keep cigarettes fresh and full flavored for your taste. Heavy paper outside—secure foil wrapping inside and the revenue stamp over the end to seal the package and keep it air-tight.

And note this! There's nothing flashy about the Camel package. No extra wrappings that do not improve the smoke. Not a cent of needless expense that must come out of the quality of the tobacco.

Camels wonderful and exclusive Quality wins on merit alone.

Because, men smoke Camels who want the taste and fragrance of the finest tobaccos, expertly blended. Men smoke Camels for Camels smooth, refreshing mildness and their freedom from cigarette aftertaste.

Camels are made for men who think for themselves.

FARM OF 5,000,000 ACRES

If Soldier Farmers Of Canada Would Prove Their Holdings.

If Canada's soldier-farmers were to pool their holdings they would have one giant farm of 5,000,000 acres, dotted with grain fields, cattle, hogs, patches of fruit trees, silos and many sturdy houses and farm buildings. Population of this one big figurative farm, according to a report in the work of the Soldier Settlement Board, would be more than 125,000, estimating an average family of five to each settler.

The actual number of ex-service men who have been placed on land through government aid is 25,443. Short courses have been held in idle months and all phases of mixed farming, scientific dairying and purebred cattle raising given intensive study, according to the report. Experts have been sent into many districts to provide continuous supervision.

As a result of the aid, financial and educational, a very high percentage of the men are becoming successful farmers, the report says.

Men You Are Welcome—Don't Fail to Call

John's Wife and Sweetheart

By WILLIAM FALL

(© 1921, Western Newspaper Union.)

John Croft had written to his wife and dropped the letter down the mail chute. She had been gone three weeks, but she had communicated with him twice during that period so that the breach between them was not irrevocable. That morning her second letter had come, and now that he had answered it he took it up and began reading it again.

"Dear John," she wrote. "I have been thinking a good deal during our separation and have come to the conclusion that neither of us is so much to blame for our disagreements as the other thinks. It is our life in the city, John, the rush of work, the cramped quarters, the killing of the romance of life by the sordid struggle for existence. John, shall we try again and see if we cannot be kinder to each other?"

John Croft had come to the city from the country, like so many country boys, burning to make a name and fortune in the field where the prizes are immense but the struggle acute. No mercy is given on that battlefield. He was twenty then, and Mildred Carter had told him that she would wait for him, if need be, forever. They had been sweethearts for three years and neither had been in love before. And Mildred waited, though the wait was long. Year by year John Croft had struggled vainly, hopelessly, until his sudden recognition came. Then he had married.

At last his wife and he had resolved upon a temporary separation. It was not to be permanent; they were too sincerely fond of each other to dream of anything like that. Rather it was to be a period of adjustment in which, each, alone, could examine his and her heart and see wherein the offense lay.

His wife would not return for three days. Why, then, should he not go to her, to Clayton, the village of their birth, and see her as she was now, recall the thousand memories of their love, steep his soul in those passionate memories which would encourage him to take up the burden of life anew? He sat down at his desk and wrote her a letter of a thousand endearments. He was coming back to Clayton, he said.

No sooner had he posted that letter than the plan became overwhelming in its insistence. He thrust a few things into his suitcase, descended in the elevator, hailed a taxicab, and was on his way to the station.

Ten minutes later he was seated in his car, watching the flying landscape as the train steamed through the pleasant country on its way toward the little Pennsylvania village.

It was six hours' run. Croft's heart was beating fast when at last, well toward sundown, the train slowed down and ran into the little station. He made his way down the village street under the long shadows of the elms.

It was a long street, and before he had reached the end the sun had set. The gracious twilight of spring shrouded all things in mystery. The place had not changed at all. He might have been returning thither from college. All sense of the intervening years had left him. At last he was standing at the bottom of Mildred's garden.

"Mildred!" he called. Then his heart pounded violently in his breast as he saw a slim figure in a sunbonnet start out of the house and move toward him with the old, leisurely grace. And so she passed between the borders of flowering lilac and at last stood before him. Why, this was his Mildred, unchanged—well, hardly changed, not at all to him. He knew now that he would love her until he died.

"Mildred!" he cried and then he had clasped her in his arms and her heart was beating against his own. And for a long time they forgot everything, save that they two stood there together as they once had done.

"John, dear," she whispered, raising her head and looking into his eyes.

"Mildred!"

"It has been all a mistake, hasn't it? It was the city that killed our love. Dear, you don't know how happy your letter made me. If we could always live here together!"

"Dear," he said softly. "I want you to know one thing. I always loved you. Sometimes, when we were least happy, I fancied that there were two Mildreds—my wife and the sweetheart who came from Clayton to marry me five years ago. But now they are both one and we will live here together and start our married life anew."

Triumph of Truth.

A merchant had advertised for a boy. Late in the afternoon a red-headed, freckle-faced, blue-eyed, honest-looking boy applied for the job.

"Do you like to work?" asked the merchant.

"No, sir," replied the boy.

"Then you can have the job," replied the merchant. "You are the first boy who's been here today who didn't lie about it and say yes."

Striking Suggestion.

Flubdub—"The doctor says I am run down." Brown—"Then it's time for you to wind up your affairs."

Not Passionately Fond.

"Is your wife fond of flowers?" "I don't think so. I simply can't get her to dig in the garden."

Advertisements are opportunities—seize them.

THE KIND WORD

"I READ such a beautiful article in the Uplift Magazine today," explained the landlady. "It said that the kind word is the greatest civilizing influence in the world."

"I have often thought," said the star boarder, "that the value of the kind word is greatly exaggerated by our gifted sunshine writers and orators. When properly used, at the right time and place, it is an excellent thing, but you must admit, my dear Mrs. Jiggers, that it doesn't always bring results. Only this morning

I heard you saying that the housework never would be done if you didn't keep after the hired girl all the time, and I assume that you don't keep after her with kind words. In fact, I have heard you say to that languorous damsel that she isn't worth the coal oil it would take to blow her through the roof.

"I am partial to kind words, and use them whenever the signs seem right, but they don't always work out as they should. On my way home this evening, I stopped to witness a dog fight which was in progress in the middle of the street. A great crowd had assembled, and the street was jammed. All the beauty and chivalry, fair women and brave men, were there. It is rather remarkable, when you come to think of it, that a dog fight has a great fascination for our leading citizens. They wouldn't go ten feet out of their way to listen to a college glee club, or hear an elevating lecture on the regeneration of the race, but they'll sprint ten blocks at the risk of apoplexy or heart failure to see a couple of misguided bowwows chew each other up."

"Mr. Junkman, the banker, was at my left hand in the crowd this evening. Everybody knows how polite and suave he is at ordinary times, but he was greatly incensed because he couldn't get a good look at the wrangling pups. A man with a tall hat stood right in front of him, and shut off the view, and Mr. Junkman knocked his hat down over his ears, without a word of apology or explanation. Why is a dog fight thus ruinous to our veneer of civilization?"

"A large man with a truculent face, was right in front of me, and I tapped him gently on the shoulder, and informed him in the most courteous terms, that he was standing on my foot and doing great injury to my favorite corn. Nobody could have broken the news to him more gently than I did. If kind words were what they are cracked up to be, the large man would have apologized and moved off. But he glowered at me in the manner of one who is willing to meet grief half way, and proceeded to argue the question. He said he wasn't standing on my foot, that I was laboring under a hallucination, and if, by any mischance, he was standing on my foot, it was because that foot was so large he couldn't do otherwise. And in any event, he finally inquired, what was I going to do about it?"

"I didn't see that I could do anything worth while, for the man was as large as an ordinary cottage, and he seemed impatient for trouble. I was just explaining to him that I rather enjoyed having people stand on my feet, when the crowd shuffled around, and he was pushed to one side. In his new position, he was in front of another citizen as large and dangerous looking as himself, and presently this second citizen took him by the ear, and twisted his head around, and said, 'Say, you big loafer, get off my foot!'"

"The truculent gentleman hadn't a word of argument on this occasion. He squirmed away, and the second citizen gave him a prod in the small of the back that made him groan, and he didn't indulge in so much as a reproachful look.

"Thus we see, Mrs. Jiggers, that kind words don't always bring home the bacon, and so I'll trouble you for the stewed apricots."

A Watch Can Do It.

Bacon—I see a Mrs. Rosa Abbey of Bingham, Me., has recovered a watch that was stolen from her four years ago while she was on her way to California.

Egbert—The police ran the watch down, I suppose?

"Oh, no; it ran down itself."

If Not, Why Not?

"When the days begin to lengthen the cold begins to strengthen," quoted mother. The small philosopher of the family mused. He had evidently struck a new problem to be solved. "Mamma," he asked, "when the days begin to shorten, does the heat begin to hotten?"

Economics.

Klicker—"What is the advantage of a budget?" Bocker—"Being forewarned, you can arrange to borrow early."

Read the classified advertisements—it pays.

HOW MUCH? THAT'S A FAIR QUESTION

Every man is vitally interested in how much a suit costs. How much you pay is important of course, but that is only half of it. A great deal depends on how much you are getting. How much? When applied to the price of these suits isn't much after all. The price is mighty reasonable. But "How much" applied to the quality is a great deal.
